Letter to the editor

Writer lauds volunteer efforts

Editor:

This is written as a commendation to the below named organizations and to the appropriate individuals (many of whose names I do not know) who participated in the search operation for me during the evening and night of Sunday, Aug. 1, 1982.

Having become lost on the eastern side of Appomattox County and the western edge of Buckingham County while on a fishing trip, I would have -- being in poor health - - suffered physically and medically had I been forced to spend the night in the woods as wet, cold and exhausted as I was.

It was with distinct relief that I saw the lights and heard the voices of the group of searchers who first found me: Ron Steinkamp, Appomattox deputies Roy King and Ricky Baldwin, Buckingham deputy Donald Ballowe, Freddy Wells, Steve Wells, Ed Williams and Dennis Williams. I was then carried, literally, to a Buckingham County jeep then transferred to a Gladstone Rescue Squad ambulance (driven by Donnie Harris with Phyllis Peters as the attendant) which carried me to the hospital in Lynchburg where I was treated and released.

I do not know the names of all the people involved in the search, but they know who they are and to them I express my thanks for their active concern. Their efforts should help contradict the widespread and growing feeling that there is so little community feeling and cooperation left in our society and that the individual is isolated and alone in his or her struggle with the world. It has long been my belief that people are more cooperative than competitive, more sharing than greedy, at least as socially concerned as self-interested, and that the old "look out for number one" philosophy is characteristic of only a few cynical and socially abused people, or of an economic idea and ethic that harkens back to the jungle law of "the survival of the fittest" which is so often used as an excuse and rationalization for social cruelty against the weakest and most vulnerable people of our communities. I certianly wasn't among the "fittest" last Sunday night, but with the help of others I definitely survived. I don't think anyone inquired about my race or religion or social class or economic status or education or any other of the many irrelevant factors usually employed to total up the value of a person. They only knew that I was a human being in trouble, and they responded. And for that, again my thanks, not only for locating me but also in vindication of my basic attitude toward life.

Specifically, I wish to commend the Appomattox County Sheriff's Department, Buckingham County Sheriff's Department, Gladstone Fire Department Buckingham Fire Department, Gladstone Rescue Squad and Buckingham Rescue Squad. I apologize to any organization or anyone I have omitted to name.

Sincerely,
Ernest H. Austin
